

Photo 1: The house of 402 High Street (middle house of the three photographed).

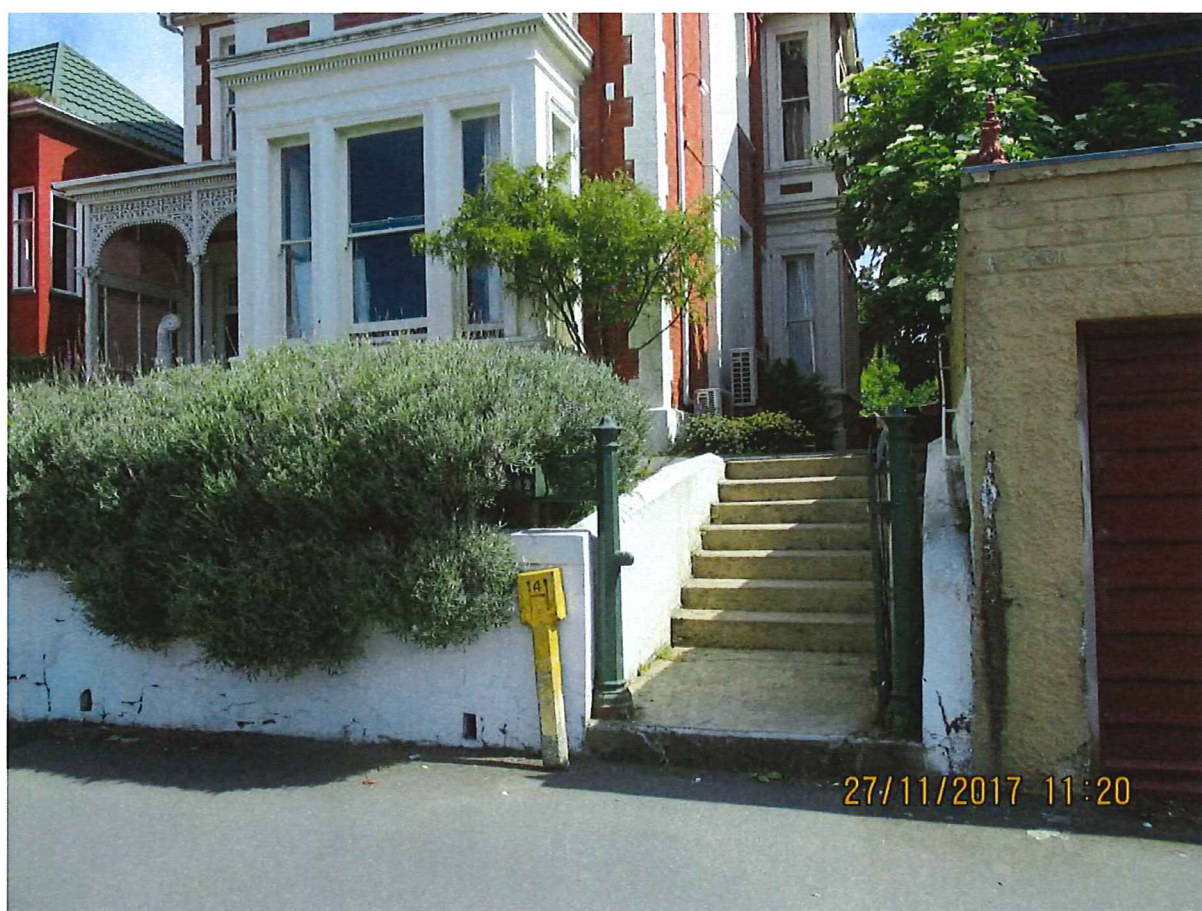

Photo 2: The pedestrian entrance to 402 High Street.

Photo 3: 401 High Street with its roadside garage and the two vans serving the Moana House are parked outside.

Photo 4: The house of 401 High Street on the left, with the house of 403 High Street to its right. The driveway to the proposed building is to the right of the house on 403 High Street.

Photo 5: The photo has been taken from the footpath of High Street, looking towards the back yard of 403 High Street. The house on the left is that of 403 High Street, and the building on the right is the flats of 409 High Street. The bluestone wall can be seen on the lower half of the wall (the portion acting as a retaining wall).

Photo 6: The existing driveway to 403 High Street.

Photo 7: The back yard of 403 High Street with the existing terracing. The dark fence is on the boundary of 401 High Street. The light fence is on the boundary of 167 Maitland Street.

Photo 8: The fence of 401 High Street and the back yard of 403 High Street.

Photo 9: The back yard of 403 High Street looking towards the street which can be seen here between the two houses of 411 and 403 High Street.

Photo 10: The same viewpoint, looking further west to show the flats of 409 High Street.

Photo 11: The rear of the houses on 403 and 401 High Street.

Photo 12: The back yard of 403 High Street, with the flats of 409 High Street on the right and the house of 167 Maitland Street just visible behind the fence.

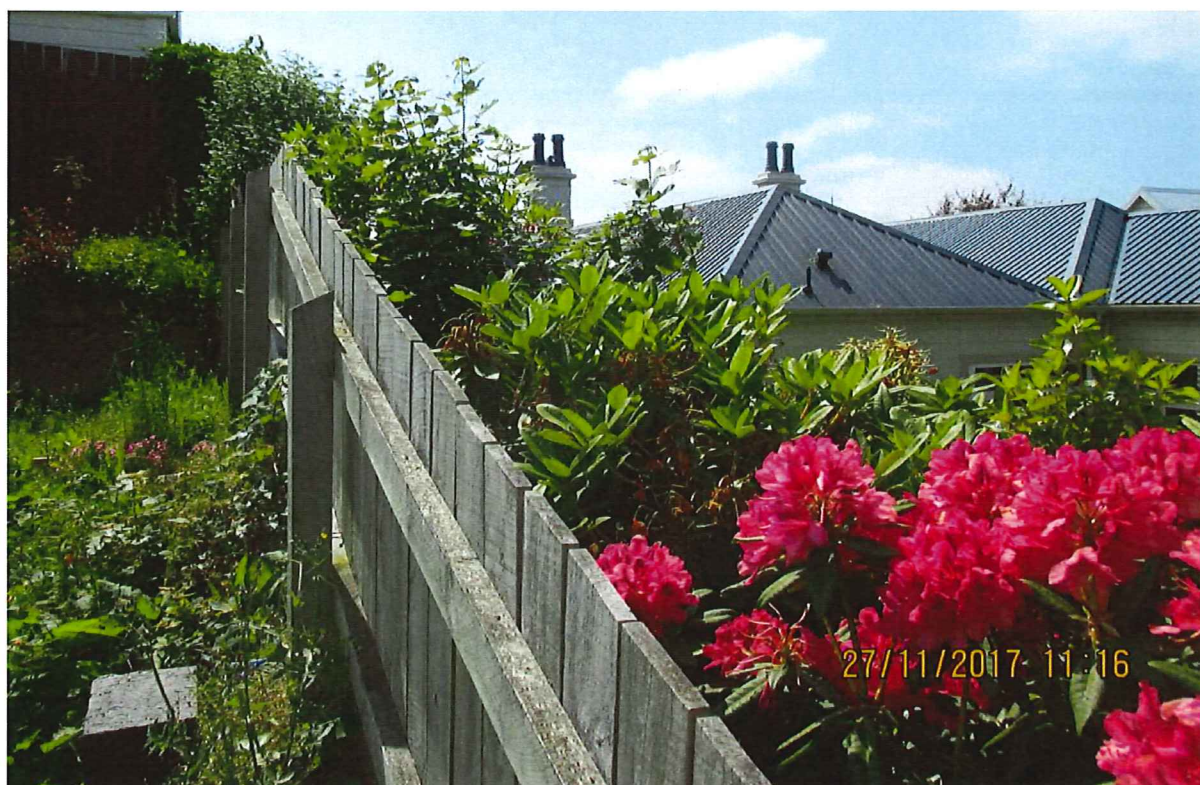

Photo 13: The back fence of 403 High Street and the roof and shrubbery of 167 Maitland Street.

Photo 14: The back yard of 167 Maitland Street (this photo was taken by raising the camera above the fence as the garden is not otherwise visible from the backyard of 403 High Street).

Photo 15: High Street, looking southwest from the driveway of 403 High Street.

Photo 16: High Street, looking northeast from the driveway of 403 High Street.