Subject: Let's make Dunedin New Zealand's leading clean energy city

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. Deep sea drilling is not the future I want for Dunedin or New Zealand!

Let's make Dunedin New Zealand's leading clean energy city. Let's be New Zealand's Climate Leader.

The world has already found more oil than we can burn if we want to remain below the accepted two degrees of global warming. We must move swiftly away from fossil fuels and towards a clean energy future. Dunedin can lead the way.

In their submission to last year's Block Offer the Christchurch City Council gave a strong message against deep sea drilling off its coast. Christchurch has also voted to divest from fossil fuel extraction and production. In February this year Auckland City Councilors also swung heavily against deep sea drilling in their region. Dunedin City Council can oppose deep sea drilling too.

Dunedin made world news when Councilors voted to divest from fossil fuel extraction in our Waipori Fund. The University of Otago Foundation Trust followed suit with its decision not to invest in fossil fuel exploration or extraction. Fossil fuels is a financial loss.

Dunedin people are well informed and committed to doing our bit to urgently reduce the worsening effects of climate change in our city. In June, flooding in South Dunedin brought the effects of climate change into our homes and our lives. Some of us are still suffering the effects of that flood. We don't want to suffer any more. No drilling off Dunedin coasts.

In May, more than 320 citizens packed the Glenroy auditorium for the consultation to set New Zealand's level of commitment in the Paris climate talks. Our meeting was the largest, per capita, of all the consultation meetings throughout New Zealand.

We unanimously and strongly called for an ambitious target of at least 40% below 1990 levels by 2030. We don't want drilling off our coasts!

We will not receive regional royalties from these companies, yet we take the risk. It is our unique wildlife, tourism and fishing industries that are at risk if there is an oil spill or gas blowout. Deep sea drilling is not worth the risk.

This year's Block Offer is twice as big as last year. This part of the southern ocean includes some of the most treacherous ocean swells and wind currents in the world. It also holds some of the most precious wildlife. It is a danger that is not worth the risk.

Yours sincerely,

Genevieve Toop

Only a few years ago Exxon Mobil gave up trying to drill in this very same spot because of the treacherous conditions. It was considered too risky to do so.

Is it going to take a major oil spill before you see that we should not allow drilling around our beautiful and pristine coastline?

I urge you to consider the risks involved should this go ahead.

As a teacher I have moved around New Zealand and worked for years before a job opportunity came up so that I could move back to Dunedin. One of the biggest selling points for living in Dunedin for me was Otago's incredible coastline. I am a mad keen spearfisher and free diver and my family is lucky enough to own a crib at Otakou. Dunedin is home to the Royal Albatross colony as well as little blue penguins and yellow eyed penguins just to name a few of our tourism attractions. I shudder to think how these would be affected by something like this if it were to happen in Otago.

At the end of the day I could say many things in this email and I'm quite certain that I will get a cookie cutter response overall, but in the off chance that someone is truly reading it I would like to say that I've just turned 30 years old and I have already seen the effect of over fishing and believe that there's a lot that needs to be changed if we want it to become sustainable at all, we all have a good thing going, don't kill the golden goose.

Subject: Economic Critique of Block Offer 2016

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. Deep sea drilling is not the future I want for Dunedin or New Zealand!

The pursuit of deep sea oil drilling at the frontiers of technological and economic viability in the South Sea Basin, with increasingly vast areas of ocean opened up to exploration activities is idiotic.

If understood from an ecological economic position (in contrast to the dogmatic neo-classical economic views of Treasury and the Energy minister) the risks involved in this probably uneconomic (on a energy and therefore capital return on debt incurred in financing basis, even with an optimistic outlook on prevailing crude oil price trends) activity are likely to leave New Zealand in a similar position in a decade or so with the drilling platforms to the position we are now in with regard to open cast mining remediation work.

The higher level creditors who have contractual first claim to assets in the bankruptcy proceedings against Solid Energy, including money supposedly ring-fenced for remediation, should be a precautionary tale.

Our nation does not have the means to undertake activities similar to those now being transferred from the private sector to the public in the UK's ongoing saga with respect to decommissioning activities in the North Sea, as we are now being asked to do with our coal mining liabilities.

I would be happy to speak to this submission.

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

Recently, I experienced first hand the everyday effects of sea drilling, as I walked the beaches of California. On a normal day, it is not unusual to come across thick globs of toxic tar-like material wash up on the beach. Smelling it from metres away, I can only imagine the effect it has on sea life and ANY living thing around it on its journey to the shore. This is not a 'spill' this is the everyday leaking we could put ourselves at risk to. Imagine our Penguins, sea lions, our kelp, our fish!

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. Deep sea drilling is outdated and idiotic - it is not the future WE want for Dunedin or New Zealand!

Thanks,
Veronica

Deep sea drilling is not the future I want for Dunedin or New Zealand! I do not support the hypocrisy of extracting fossil fuels that will make climate change worse, when we are already suffering its effects now.

Instead, I support a thriving and healthy clean energy economy - keep up the good work instigated by divesting from fossil fuels!

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. Deep sea drilling is not the future I want for Dunedin or New Zealand!

Allowing deep sea drilling to go ahead would strongly contrast with your wonderful 'divestment policy'. Please join Christchurch City Council in saying no to drilling off our coasts.

There are a multitude of reasons to say no to deep sea drilling in Aotearoa. Significantly, the world already has access to fossil fuel reserves that represent 5 times the amount of carbon we can afford to burn if we are to have a chance of staying below 2 degrees of global warming. Therefore it is risky and counterintuitive to support further exploration and extraction.

The impacts of a changing climate are already apparent locally and across the globe. We have a responsibility to prevent and reduce future suffering.

In addition, fossil fuels are a finite resource and a risky investment. Dunedin made world news when councillors voted to divest from fossil fuel extraction. We have the potential to be New Zealand's leading clean energy city. More than 300 concerned Dunedin citizens attended the public meeting about setting targets for reducing our emissions (at short notice), and over 15,000 people around the country made submissions advocating for a fair and ambitious target to take to Paris. Unfortunately, our calls for action were unheeded. We need to show the government that people of Aotearoa see climate change as a huge threat, and that we do not support drilling off our coasts.

Further, allowing companies to enter our oceans will not bring economic benefit to Dunedin, and will instead put industries based around tourism, wildlife and fishing at risk. And tourists may be less attracted to Dunedin if it becomes a drilling town. Also, conditions here are dangerous for drilling.

Please take a strong, positive stance on this significant issue and do not support deep sea drilling!

Subject: Block Offer 2016

Dear Councillors

I am calling on you to help protect our environment and to help protect future generations from the threat of climate change by adopting a position of opposition to Deep Sea Oil prospecting and drilling.

As you are aware oil companies have been given the right to prospect for oil around the coast of New Zealand and consultations are currently underway with Iwi, Hapu and Local Authorities until 30th October 2015.

The Council's primary role is described as 'to protect the region's land, water, coast and air, while allowing for sustainable development.' The goals at the heart of the long term plan are described as "A healthy environment, community involvement, sustainable use of resources, a better economy and strong relationships with iwi."

Deep Sea Oil exploration runs directly counter to the NZ's goals of protecting the region's land, water, coast and air, are not a sustainable use of resources and will not result in a better economy.

☐ Deep Sea Oil exploration is a huge risk to our people and places, and our environment (and therefore also to our economy).

☐ The seismic surveying used to identify resources in the sea bed is known to be harmful, even fatal, to marine life and to mammals such as whales and dolphins in particular. Despite the evidence of the damaging impact on marine ecology it is being allowed and its impact not adequately monitored.

☐ If drilling for oil were to go ahead wells could be up to 500m deeper than the Deep Water Horizon well that caused catastrophic damage to the Gulf of Mexico. A huge oil spill would be a very real threat and would be devastating to the environment, the people and the economy of the region. Beaches contaminated with oil would adversely affect recreation, tourism, and fishing and other marine related activities. In addition we know that New Zealand does not have the capability to deal appropriately with even a relatively small oil spill (as evidenced by the slow, inadequate response to the Rena disaster) and that the agreements being made with the oil companies remove them from liability to clear up if there is an accident.

☐ Oil exploration, both in terms of the immediate risk of an oil spill but also in terms of the contribution to climate change, endangers fishing – customary, commercial or recreational. Oil exploration therefore risks our economy but also people's well being. For generations people have lived off the abundance of the sea, for Tangata Whenua this is especially important as the sea is their food basket.

☐ The effects of Climate Change are already being experienced and it is now fully accepted that we have to change our oil dependent lifestyles. All local and regional councils acknowledge the impact of climate change and the current and future challenges that it creates. Here in the north we have our new norm of droughts and then floods. The International Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) has warned of 'irreversible and dangerous' changes to the climate if the use of fossil fuels continues. It is irresponsible to risk environmental damage to search for a fuel that we can't use anyway without causing catastrophic damage for future generations.

☐ Oil production is not economically sustainable (extraction of a finite resource the use of which contributes to climate change could never be sustainable in any way) nor would oil production contribute at all to our local economy other than to have a potentially huge adverse impact if an accident did occur. Statoil executives have themselves admitted that their activities will not result in any jobs.

Although I acknowledge that councils did not make the decision to issue permits for oil exploration I wish to register my opposition to this activity. Deep sea oil prospecting is in clear breach of the primary role of all councils and everything they purport to stand for.

I request that

☐ Your council make a submission to the current, and any future, block offer consultations expressing strong opposition to Deep Sea Oil, make a public statement of strong opposition to deep sea oil prospecting and drilling, and work to prevent these activities from happening by whatever means available.

We need to take real climate action now and say NO to deep water drilling.

Subject: Block Offer 2016

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. Deep sea drilling is not the future I want for Dunedin or New Zealand!

Dunedin can be New Zealand's leading clean energy city. We want to be New Zealand's Climate Leader. The world has already found more oil than can afford to be burned. We must stay below the accepted two degrees of global warming. We must move swiftly away from fossil fuels and towards a clean energy future.

Dunedin made world news when councillors voted to divest from fossil fuel extraction in our Waipori Fund. The University of Otago Foundation Trust followed suit with its decision not to invest in fossil fuel exploration or extraction. Fossil fuels are a financial loss.

Dunedin people are well informed and committed to urgently reducing the effects of climate change in our city. In June, flooding in South Dunedin brought the effects of climate change into our homes and our lives. Some of us are still suffering the effects of that flood. We don't want to suffer any more.

In May this year, more than 300 citizens packed the Glenroy Auditorium for the consultation to set New Zealand's level of commitment to reducing carbon emissions. Our meeting was the largest, per capita, of all the consultation meetings throughout New Zealand. We unanimously called for an ambitious reduction in carbon emissions. Blocking the offer is preventing future carbon emissions.

We will not receive regional royalties from these companies, yet we bear the risk. It is our unique wildlife, tourism and fishing industries that in danger if there is an oil spill or gas blowout. Deep sea drilling is not worth losing our moana.

This year's Block Offer is twice as big as last year. This part of the southern ocean has treacherous ocean swells and strong winds. Conditions here are unfavourable to drilling.

Yours sincerely,

Zoe Eccles

Dunedin

I would like to submit on the DCCs response to the Oil and Gas Block offer 2016

In an age when we are facing dangerous Climate Change it is no longer appropriate to drill for oil so I am very much against the Block Offer.

If the government redirected the millions it spends on subsidising Fossil Fuels to spending on clean energy we could start preparing for the low carbon future and provide jobs.

Dunedin made a principled stand to divest the Waipori fund from fossil fuels now we need to come out strongly against deep sea drilling as the Christchurch and Auckland Councils have.

Please make a choice for the future.

Your sincerely

Dear Dunedin City Councilors

It is imperative to stand unitedly against this proposed rape of our part of the globe, and I ask you as a body to preserve our waterfront (for it would be industrialised in ghastly manner eradicating the joy its beauty and accessibility brings to us), to realise as I know you do that renewable fuels are the best way we can ensure a living planet for our descendants, and to be a role model in leading those in your care towards true sustainability.

I write as a great grandmother, lifelong science teacher and world citizen.

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. Deep sea drilling is not the future I want for Dunedin or New Zealand!

We need to move away from fossil fuels as soon as possible if we are to minimise the damage to our environment. We do not need further exploration for fossil fuel that cannot be used without exacerbating climate change.

I want to see Dunedin make a stand against deep sea drilling and send a strong message to the rest of New Zealand that we are looking to the future and caring for our fragile planet.

Please listen to the informed people who advise us that fossil fuels are not our future. Dunedin won't benefit from overseas companies extracting our resources and could be left with massive environmental damage if anything goes wrong.

Let's think of our children and grandchildren and do the right thing now! Say no to deep sea drilling!

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

If you, like 95% of the world's climate scientists and most of the world's business and political leaders, believe human-made climate change is real - then you have no choice but to oppose deep sea drilling including in the Otago region.

The world has already drilled all the petroleum it needs. We should have started switching to alternative energy sources two decades ago. Anyone who says we're not intelligent enough to create the mechanisms (and cars!) to do this can be proven wrong by thousands of solutions already being used and developed. Why didn't we start the switch two decades ago? Because offers such as the Block Offer 2016 are continually accepted by people who want to improve their lot in the short term. Now you are faced with the opportunity to stand up and say 'Enough'. If we don't our kids and grandkids will lament our decision as climate disaster fully takes hold.

Dunedin is a place of beauty and brains. Lets protect the former by engaging the later. Please submit, as Dunedin City Council, against the New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. It's the right thing to do for future generations.

Regards,

Josh Thomas

We can and must make a clean energy future for Dunedin. We owe it to the people of South Dunedin, some of whom are still suffering because of the flooding in June. We owe it to future ratepayers and citizens who will face far worse effects and costs of climate change.

We owe it to all the people who packed the Glenroy auditorium in May this year demanding a strong and binding commitment from our government at the Paris climate talks. We owe it to the unique and precious creatures of the southern ocean.

As the world wakes up to the fact that we cannot afford (for the sake of our climate and planet) to burn most of the fossil fuel already discovered, there is no good case to be made for further exploration, especially in high risk deep sea areas. The costs are too high, economically and environmentally.

Dear Dunedin City Councillors,

I imagine all councillors will be aware of the risks of deep sea drilling off the otago coast: hard-to-cap spills that threaten our beaches, wildlife and (for those of you with a concern for dollars) tourist income. I am sure that some of you think the risks are worth taking for the economic benefits that you believe will come to the city.

I challenge those who take this view to re-read the BERL report written for the council in 2012. That tells us that it will take 7 years before any gas or oil flows. By that time global emissions of CO2 since 2000 will have reached 1000 gigatonnes and there will be a one-in-four chance of temperatures rising above the dangerous 2degrees C.

You should think of this as an investment problem. Would you put your own money into a venture that will come on stream about the time that the pressures to reduce emissions become intolerable? And if not your money, what right do you have to give public backing to it? I am sure that those of you who are impressed by the supposed economic benefits of an oil industry in Dunedin are no fools, but perhaps some of you are not used to taking business investment decisions in the face of large-scale risks. The people who do have that expertise tell us that we should apply a low discount rate to future costs: in other words we should bring into the calculation all of the very long term benefits (and there would be some) and costs (and these would far, far outweigh the benefits) of continuing to emit carbon. On that basis, investing in fossil fuel extraction is a very bad investment decision.

And I have to ask, why would we want to hitch our wagon to a dying industry when the opportunities presented by the new low-carbon economy for making serious money and re-inventing Dunedin as a wonderful place to live and work are so exciting?

I probably will not succeed in changing your mind. You are no fools and will have to convince yourselves of these arguments. Do please get on with it. I have children (and so do you) who will have to live with the consequences of your actions.

Yours sincerely,

I support the work of Oil Free Otago on this issue. In general, I think the DCC's role in economic development should be managing and developing infrastructure to cope with the challenges of the 21st century, including improving Dunedin's substandard housing stock by tough regulation of landlords and maintaining and extending council housing.

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016.

According to the IPCC, in order to avoid irreversible climate change and stay under 2 degrees rise in global air temperature we cannot afford to burn 33% of the oil we have already discovered. Therefore it does not make sense to look for more.

Allowing the government to offer oil and gas exploration opportunities does not fit with the DCC Environment Strategy recently put out for public consultation. Nor does it fit with the ideas proposed in the draft Energy Plan.

As oil prices are plummeting world-wide due to fracking and Saudi Arabia flooding the market it does not make financial sense for companies to be exploring for oil. This is a prime time to set the tone for local renewable energy production for our city.

Thanks in advance for standing behind the new, forwarding thinking city plan/strategy and speaking up for what we want as part of the future for our city.

Dunedinites are proud of their city and people. Our Ancestors are forward thinking peoples. Our University and business history show the intelligence and vision our people are blessed with. This same intelligence and vision tells us that supporting continued exploration in fossil fuels is damaging to our environment even when successful, threatens disaster and is short-sighted. Let us instead make a clear statement to divest from these fuels by not supporting the block offer and rather invest in intelligent, environmentally friendly alternatives. Let's harness the vision and intelligence of our people by investing in our young people through the University and local innovative businesses and show the world just why we are called Gigatown Dunedin.

Subject: 2016 Oil and Gas Block Offer Feedback

Dear Dunedin City Council,

I am writing with regards to the 2016 Oil and Gas Block Offers on which local councils and kiwi are being consulted. The public are not consulted on any stage of oil and gas exploration; therefore we have to rely on our local council to make community voices heard within this process. Thank you for inviting public feedback on this issue, I can appreciate that you are in a difficult position.

I have read the submission that the Dunedin City Council made last year. I was quite surprised that the DCC did not take an active stance against proposed drilling activities in the Otago region, given the severe environmental, social and economic risks posed versus the lack of convincing evidence of benefits. I worked closely with the Christchurch City Council last year during the development of their submission. Their final submission opposed the oil and gas block offers and provided well-researched reasons as to why oil exploration off Canterbury's coast was not in the interests of the public. They are planning to do the same this time around. This sets a precedent and provides solidarity for other councils.

There are a multitude of reasons why the DCC should construct a strong submission against the 2016 oil and gas block offers; however I will limit myself to a few key points.

1. Oil exploration contributes to runaway climate change

One of the most important reasons for not allowing the 2016 oil and gas block offers to proceed is that fossil fuel extraction contributes massively to climate change. As it stands, the world has a carbon budget. That is to say there is a certain amount of carbon that we can afford to burn without crossing the two degree threshold. Two degrees is the temperature rise beyond which the impacts of climate change escalate dramatically. The world's governments agreed that a temperature rise of two degrees would be disastrous for humanity. The IPCC (Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change) has reiterated that anthropogenic climate change is the single biggest threat to humanity. Humanity cannot afford to burn more than 20% of its known fuel reserves if we are to avoid runaway climate change (Carbon Tracker Initiative and The Grantham Research Institute, 2013). Exploring for new oil reserves is completely socially irresponsible, given that any oil found will facilitate reliance on fossil fuels and ensure that we exceed our carbon budget.

Our neighbours in the Pacific Islands stand to lose their homes due to rising sea levels, and we're allowing companies to search for further fuels that will intensify climate change impacts. By opening up these new exploration areas the government are allowing us to become the final frontier of an outdated oil industry and locking us into a high emitting future. The world is waking up to climate change and fast switching to renewable energy sources- relying on fossil fuels for economic gain lowers our economic resilience to the global changes that are taking place. New Zealand could be a world leader in renewable energy and transition to a high tech green economy, which could earn up to 22 billion dollars annually (PriceWaterhouseCoopers, 2009). This would set an example for the rest of the world and we'd become part of the solutions to climate change instead of exacerbating the problem. We are forgoing a lucrative green economy for the sake of a dying fossil fuel industry and in the long term it's our younger generations that will have to pay for it. This is a strong argument for abandoning the deep-sea oil vision in New Zealand in its entirety.

2. Lack of capacity to deal with an oil spill

The exploratory drilling phase has the potential to go catastrophically wrong. The greater the number of exploratory drills being conducted the greater the statistical chance of a blow out. New Zealand is utterly unequipped to cope with the impacts of a spill and our marine environment would be irreparably damaged. The 3 oil spill response vessels that would be dispatched are unfit for open water. The Gulf of Mexico spill had thousands of vessels respond and the spill was not stemmed for months despite the abundance of relief wells in the area. It would take weeks before a relief well would even arrive in New Zealand and attempt to stem a blow out. The Corexit dispersant is the number one response at our disposal; however it is a highly toxic material containing carcinogens (Oil Spill Intelligence Report, 2012). Any oil response strategy involving Corexit has the potential to do long term damage to marine food chains and should not be considered a safe spill control method.

3. Environmental and economic vulnerability in the event of an oil spill

The risks to our marine environment translate into severe economic risks for communities and industries that rely on a healthy marine ecosystem. In Otago we rely on domestic and international tourism as a significant source of income. We also rely on the ocean for food resources. All of this would be put into jeopardy in the event of a spill. Oil exploration off the coasts increases economic vulnerability and decreases resilience of communities. Deep-sea oil operations would threaten the already fragile fisheries and the tourism operators that rely on unique wildlife and pristine scenery. Oil exploration activities also increase New Zealand's economic vulnerability because we are liable to cover the majority of costs of a spill clean up. When Andarko was exploratory oil drilling in New Zealand they were legally required to cover 30 million dollars of the clean up of a spill, even though a large spill would cost into the billions of dollars to respond to. New Zealand taxpayers would front the majority of the clean up costs. This does not include economic losses faced by fishing, tourism and export industries after the incident. After the Gulf of Mexico spill the economic losses to the tourism and fishing industries stretched into the tens of billions of US dollars (Walsh, 2010; Proctor, 2010). New Zealand does not have the capacity to buffer itself from these hefty economic and social costs in the event of an oil spill.

4. Loss of cultural identity

Having our coastlines open to deep sea oil exploration also impacts upon our cultural identity- New Zealanders pride themselves on being considered an environmentally progressive nation with a strong connection to nature. Oil exploration off our coastline makes us all inadvertent accomplices to an industry renowned for it's abysmal environmental record. These new oil and gas block offers demonstrate our government's commitment to a dying industry over its commitments to the wishes and needs of its residents.

In conclusion, I would like to implore the DCC to oppose the 2016 oil and gas block offers because oil exploration poses a severe threat to our climate, our local marine environment, coastal communities, and future generations. These are not things that should be put at risk lightly, especially not for the sake of short term profits.

I think the council would do well to strengthen their submission, because the reality is that it's ludicrous to think that Dunedin will become a lucrative 'Texas' of New Zealand, let's not kid ourselves. The promises of money and jobs to local communities that were made by offshore oil companies have been left largely undelivered in the past. In areas where fossil fuel companies have thrived they have left trails of unjustly treated local communities. Why would we think that this time around will be any different? The world is becoming conscious of the effects of climate change, and we have to acknowledge that oil and gas are dying industries. By the time Dunedin would establish itself as a cosy outpost for oil and gas industries the world will have turned its back on 'black gold', and we'll be left with the risks and aftermath of deep sea oil extraction.

Let us not confine ourselves to outdated ideas of development, and let us create a Dunedin that encapsulates a positive, renewable future.

Once again, thank you for inviting public feedback. I hope that you will act in the interests of our local community, ecology, and climate by opposing the 2016 oil and gas block offers.

Kind regards,

Siana Fitzjohn

Dear Patricia,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit my views on the Block Offer for petroleum and gas exploration off the Otago Coast for 2016.

I am opposed to oil and gas exploration off the Otago coast in all circumstances, because there are already sufficient known fossil fuel reserves in the world to exceed the limits to emissions levels widely recognised as needed to avoid catastrophic climate change. Despite the apparent attractions of the fossil fuel industry in terms of short-term employment opportunities for Dunedin, the city needs to resist further dependence on fossil fuel and instead be at the forefront of the movement to create a more sustainable energy base for the economy, with long-term prospects.

Kind regards,

Simonne

Hi Patricia,

See below for my brief comment on the DCC consultation on a response to NZP&M 2016 Block offer:

I think it is irresponsible to be supporting further exploration for new fossil fuel-based energy sources when all scientific evidence suggests that using all of our existing reserves will lock us in to catastrophic climate change. Any new exploration and investment in fossil fuels has far a greater risk of being stranded assets as more stringent limitations on burning fossil fuels are adopted globally than the vague promise of a short term economic boost. It would be wise for the DCC to limit its exposure to such risks by focusing their attention on developing renewable alternatives and I encourage the DCC to support the government to do so as well.

Cheers,

My view is that we should not be allowing exploration for oil and gas off the Otago or NZ coast. Exploration itself puts our environment at risk; and we already have more fossil fuels than can safely be used. It sends completely the wrong irresponsible message to big oil companies if we allow them to continue to explore for oil and gas.

We need to be building jobs in 21st century green industries, not in fossil fuels.

The world needs oil & gas, we live longer and have better lives because of petroleum. Dunedin desperately needs jobs or more businesses are going to close.

Divesting was a total farce, ideological nonsense not based on logic at all. How much less petroleum based products does the DCC use now as before divestment? absolute zero difference.

Exactly what harm has New Zealand endured through offshore exploration? no marine animals have ever been harmed and no major oil spill has ever occurred in New Zealand waters.

As for climate change and fossil fuels, lets quit coal and quickly and easily replace it with natural gas and cut emissions by at least 30% in years rather than decades.

We have a potential jackpot of natural gas off Otago coast, where we can help the world transition.

If we don't have exploration off our coast, how hypocritical would we be by still depending on oil & gas?

Lets quit the hypocrisy and fully embrace every opportunity Dunedin has at making it a thriving city.

Dear Patricia McLean

I am emailing to register my rejection of all fossil fuel exploration, on the grounds of the extremely high risks fossil fuel poses to the health and safety of the entire planet. Examples of its dangers are the sea level rises which will destroy parts of Dunedin, and the increasing acidification of the oceans, which will destroy our local shellfish and other fishing industries.

There is also a large opportunity cost if our city were to become involved in fossil fuel activities. Our city's economy needs to develop sustainable, long-term industries and the longer we take to do this, the more impoverished our communities will eventually become.

I would also like the Dunedin City Council to register its disapproval of the short time frame the Government set for consultation on this vital issue, and the restrictions on the kind of consultation allowed. I consider all of the Great South and Canterbury basins to be of immense cultural and environmental significance to all of us who live here.

Submission on the Petroleum Block Offer 2016

Thank you for the consulting with the community on this issue, and for the DCC submission to NZ Petroleum and Minerals in January 2013, which by and large was a good submission.

I am strongly opposed to any oil or gas exploration, drilling and fracking in New Zealand waters or on land, for several reasons.

Climate change

I oppose oil or gas exploration, drilling and fracking because it would contribute to ongoing climate change. 97% of scientists agree that human-induced climate change is already happening, and we have already witnessed increasingly extreme weather events such as droughts, flooding and wild storms.

Dunedin is vulnerable to sea level rise, extreme tidal surges and ongoing coastal erosion (witness Ocean Beach). We all need to do our bit to halt and reverse climate change.

We must leave fossil fuels in the ground and use other energy sources if our grandchildren are to have any hope of a good life. I have tried to reduce my carbon footprint by forgoing a car for the past 10 years. As individuals, families, communities, cities and companies we all need to do our bit to make the big switch to clean, green energy.

Environmental concerns

I oppose oil and gas exploration, drilling and fracking on environmental grounds because of the risks of blowouts, spills or slow leaks. The exploratory phase is the most risky time.

The Rena disaster should have been enough of a wake-up call to us – and that was a tiny amount of oil compared with what kept gushing up in the Gulf of Mexico for nearly three months, from an exploratory well at a shallower depth from what is being proposed here.

I want our wonderful marine and coastal environment to be as healthy as possible – for its own sake, for the albatrosses, penguins, dolphins, sea lions and all the unique creatures we share this earth with, as well as for our enjoyment, health and well-being, food sources, and economic benefit.

Onshore exploration, drilling or fracking risks contaminating soils and waterways, as is happening overseas (e.g. in the USA) and is likely to be happening now in Taranaki. Mainly overseas companies are extracting our resources and leaving us to deal with the toxic legacy when they have gone.

Economic concerns

While communities such as Dunedin may experience some short-term localised economic benefits (in the form of jobs, contracts and service delivery) from oil and gas exploration, drilling or fracking, the economic risks in the event of any spill or blowout are far greater, especially to tourism (including wildlife tourism and cruise ship visits), fishing, rail and road transport, and coastal shipping. I have heard that the risks are supposedly low, but there have been dozens of blowouts and spills around the world, and I don't want one here! Even if the activity is safely conducted, it is pointless and redundant because of climate change – it is a wasted opportunity when we need instead to put resources into clean, green energy alternatives. There is a risk of ratepayer money being diverted to support the infrastructure needed for the exploration when it should instead go into more positive projects that will support our Dunedin community to be resilient and healthy in the long term.

Taranaki is held up as the shining example of economic benefit from the oil industry, but there are several critiques of this that show it is not what it seems. Earlier in September 2015 our New Zealand Government gave $9.6 million dollars of taxpayer money to help find more oil and gas. This is not overseas money coming in to New Zealand – this is Kiwis subsidising the oil and gas industry – i.e. we're paying for our own jobs.

Social well-being

We Dunedinites and New Zealanders must be able to determine what happens in our own environment in order to feel connected and empowered. If we are not able to meaningfully participate in decisions about activities that affect our community, we will feel despondent, despairing and disaffected, which is bad for all of us.

We also derive our social well-being from meaningful, positive work, which comes from a feeling of contributing to society. Fossil fuel extraction is a dead-end industry and much more positive and meaningful work can be found in things that contribute to the health and well-being of our communities in the widest sense.

Social well-being also comes from having a clean and healthy environment – I don't want our beautiful coastal and marine environment put at risk.

Sincerely,
Philippa Jamieson

To the Mayor of Dunedin and Dunedin City Councillors,

I strongly oppose the offshore drilling envisaged in the New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016 and particularly that proposed within the seabed area of 208,632 square kilometres in the Great South and Canterbury Basins. Deep sea drilling is simply not appropriate in the ecologically valuable and fragile coastal waters off the coastline of southern New Zealand.

I urge you to maintain the commendable position you have taken with previous such "offers" and to go even further (like your counterparts in Christchurch) and send a strongly-worded submission to central government conveying our overwhelming intolerance of their reckless approach to the environmental, social and economic wellbeing and security of this region and New Zealand as a whole.

The message this ridiculous "offer" sends to the rest of the world is that we have no regard for the immediate need to reduce fossil fuel dependency, that we care little for our marine and coastal environment, that we lack the will to invest in alternative fuel options, that support of the region's eco-tourism is not a priority, and that we have a cavalier disregard for the drivers of climate change and are ignorant of the increasing unacceptability of the "business as usual" approach.

In all of these areas, we have the ability to stand as international leaders in sensible and sustainable options. Opening our coastal and offshore zone to large-scale oil and gas exploration is in direct conflict with such objectives.

Hello

I am deeply concerned about oil exploration off the coasts of Otago.

I work in the tourist industry as a tour guide and need to present the city, area and country to German tourists.

People from Germany are very aware of ecology and are concerned about climate change and fossil fuel use.

It is more difficult to 'sell' them Dunedin and New Zealand as clean green when at the same time we are exploring for more oil exploration.

Also with tourism being one of the most important economies to Dunedin we cannot afford even one single accident with any eventual drilling.

I am very strongly opposed to any oil drilling off the Otago (or the NZ) coast.

I do not believe in the economic benefit of this kind of venture for the city of Dunedin either.

If we want to be a great small city, not drilling for oil might be to our advantage...

We do not want to support the efforts of a sunset industry to prolong the era of dependence on fossil fuels.

I understand that the DCC will support the establishment of an EV charging station in the central city before Christmas and is moving forward with safe cycling infrastructure- that's more like it thank you.

I hope that the DCC will add a supportive statement for the establishment of a marine reserve around the Kermadec Islands to its submission.

I oppose the exploration for oil and gas off the Otago Coast.

The world needs to limit global warming to less than 2°C, as agreed internationally. It's the responsibility of everyone around the world to achieve that goal.

There has been some argument that we expect to find gas off the Otago Coast, and that gas emits about a 1/4 of the greenhouse gas coal does.

The theory is a significant find of gas off Dunedin's coast will reduce the global greenhouse gas footprint.

- A recent study published in Nature (<http://bit.ly/1HP5i7M>) found that half of existing GAS reserves cannot be burnt if we're to meet the 2°C target (commentary here: <http://bit.ly/1xGidnX>).

- The Global Calculator (<http://globalcalculator.org/>), a great piece of work by the UK's Department of Energy and Climate Change, led to this conclusion:

"We cannot rely on switching from coal to gas as a major contributor to tackling climate change. All unabated fossil fuels contribute to climate change: for example, an efficient gas plant currently emits 350 gCO₂e/kWh. But to be consistent with a 50% chance of limiting temperature increases to 2°C, we need to decarbonise global electricity generation to near zero gCO₂e/kWh by 2050." (<http://bit.ly/1w3xeMJ>)

- Coal power is on the way out anyway. China's coal consumption fell 2.9% in 2014 against an overall energy supply increase of 2.2% (<http://bit.ly/1J78Tg1>). This is being driven in large part by air pollution concerns. Focusing on gas is more likely to displace and hold back clean energy sources than coal, so a gas find off our coast will not reduce the global GHG footprint.

In 2013 the world added more renewable electricity capacity than coal, oil and gas (<http://bloom.bg/1FGwAIS>). And that's not to mention nuclear. Installed solar PV capacity has been doubling every 2-3 years and it is on track to become the dominant global electricity source by 2030 (<http://bit.ly/1Eg5KeT>). Change is happening very fast and we need to get ahead of the curve to take advantage of these opportunities that will arise. Not getting stuck in the past with old technology. Any potential revenue today, must be balanced against the the cost of a changing climate and rising sea levels. These costs to businesses, communities, and people must be taken into account.

Finally, last but not least, drilling for oil and gas now at best will only give us profits, and potential jobs. I would prefer to see these resources left in the ground for future generations. Our children and our grandchildren will need it far more than us today, as they see and experience the effects of the fossil fuels we are burning today. Leave it in the ground for when our children really need it.

Regards,
Jack Pivac

I would like to submit the following submission.

I do not believe it is in the long term interests of Dunedin City to be involved in or supporting oil/gas exploration in our coastal waters.

While there may be short term economic gains they are just that. We need to have a vision which extends beyond our generation. While the environmental risks may be low being involved in the oil industry will tarnish our reputation of having a largely pristine environment. We must be responsible custodians of what we have.

We need to capitalise on our unique natural environment along with our cultural and historical assets. It is these which will help build our great city as the place in the pacific to learn, live, create, play. That is a wealth which is real and meaningful long term.

Submission on Block Offer

Environment branch

Dunedin North Labour Party

29 September 2015

Dear Councillors,

The Environment branch of the Dunedin North Labour Party strongly opposes granting permission for oil and gas exploration in the Great South and Canterbury Basin.

Here are our reasons:

1. Fossil fuels are a major cause of climate change through CO2 emissions. The faster we burn fossil fuels, the faster that sea-levels will rise to swamp our coastlines, and make the maps provided quite simply unrecognisable.
2. The DCC submission discusses this danger in Section 4, but to the Environment group, the effect of fossil fuel consumption on climate change is the most compelling reason to halt exploration for oil and gas, and seek other, readily available energy solutions.
3. The arguments in Section 4 are unanswerable. The scientific projections of climate change impacts are already proving to be true.
4. The costs for Dunedin of adapting to climate change are likely to be staggeringly high (see 4.2), far outweighing any projected benefit from oil and gas exploration. The Stern Report makes this argument abundantly clear.
5. New Zealand is in the extremely fortunate position of have access to abundant wind, sun, geothermal, and tidal power. We do not need to rely on fossil fuels.
6. If we electrified our entire transport system, which would be comparatively easy, we would not need the quantity of fossil fuel that we burn every day.
7. Electrification of the transport system would create many jobs. See the workshop in North-East Valley where petrol-driven cars are being converted to electricity for $2000-3000. Enthusiasm for electric cars is notably taking off right now.
8. Oil and gas exploration has unknown effects on marine wildlife through sonic booms and habitat disturbance. We cannot afford to take chances with one of our richest sources of food and a major contributor to our export markets.
9. And that's not even considering the possibility of an oil spill, for which we do not have the necessary clean-up equipment (see DCC submission Section 2.4).
10. New Zealand already recognises the need to protect marine environment with marine reserves, including the Kermadec Islands, as of today.
11. Dunedin is a wildlife and tourism city. We strongly agree with the reservations clearly expressed in Sections 2–3 of the DCC submission, about the possible impacts and risks of exploration.
12. In short, we agree with and support the reasons given in Section 5 for declining the block offer, and urge the Dunedin City Council to stand firm.

Jocelyn Harris,
Co-chair.

Hi DCC

Please have it noted that I would like to see a reduction in the areas available for exploration permits released in the Block Offer 2016.

In particular, I would like to see a reduction in the available release area in the Great South and Canterbury Basins.

I believe that oil and gas exploration poses a considerable number of risks, including:

- Damage to New Zealand's reputation for environmental leadership.
- Potential for oil spills.
- Safety of workers involved in exploration.
- Environmental damage as a result of the eventual consumption of any found oil/gas resources.

I believe that these risks outweigh any economic benefit that may result from the exploration permits.

Dear DCC,

ProGas Otago has 5,247 facebook followers that strongly believe that the Dunedin City Council needs to be more proactive and supportive of oil and gas exploration in the Great South and Canterbury basin.

Dunedin's Economic Development Strategy recognises that, all things being equal, Dunedin faces the risk of losing business and people to other cities. Ultimately, the Strategy has been developed to increase skills, incomes and job opportunities for Dunedin's residents. The Strategy's economic goals are to: to increase 10,000 extra jobs over 10 years (requiring employment growth of approximately 2% per annum); and to support an average of $10,000 extra income for each person (requiring GDP per capita to rise by about 2.5% per annum).

The Dunedin City Council is working on its climate change impact and use of fossil fuels, but ProGas Otago strongly disagrees with the Council dictating to other countries how they should use fossil fuels. In many cases, these countries would strongly benefit from using natural gas from areas like the Great South and Canterbury basin.

In the Dunedin City Council submission to the Government's 2016 Block Offer, it would be productive to acknowledge that 5,247 ProGas Otago's followers support off-shore exploration in the Great South and Canterbury basin.

Yours sincerely,

Do you have a view on exploration for oil and gas off the Otago coast? The Dunedin City Council is seeking community input as it prepares a response to the Government's 2016 Petroleum Block Offer.

Save The Otago Peninsula (more commonly known by our acronym, STOP) is opposed to any further oil and gas extraction from sites other than those already producing if we are serious about halting climate change.

We consider there is no need to continue searching for new sites. The existing sources are enough to meet the world's needs in the foreseeable future and to continue to search in areas where extraction is difficult and could lead to a seriously damaging environmental disaster, is irresponsible in our view.

Due to the fact that we had only a little notice about this consultation, there is little detail in this submission about the reasons for this stand. However the conclusion is the same and will no doubt be all that is recorded.

FEEDBACK ON THIS PROPOSAL

Drilling off any coast, in any ocean anywhere, as follows:

-Acknowledged risks to the environment. Pollution.

-Destruction to New Zealand coast, and other parts of the coastal world.

Consider the impact on tourist travel and involvement and interaction to our Islands.

-Pollution to the sea bed

-Expensive to undertake

-Fossil fuels are now considered an old fashioned method of producing energy.

-Shell have just pulled out of Northern Canada, due to public pressure.

-Bill Gates and Melinda Gates will be considering pulling their monitory resources out of fossil fuel research and exploration.

They are considering, because of huge world, public pressure to ask them to do so. Well Done!

-Public are not behind drilling and exploration of sea bed, because of the clear risks involved.

-Drilling does not create jobs for New Zealand and in the long run, there will be no jobs due to world pollution.

I write in support of the proposed oil and gas exploration off the Otago coast. I believe it is critical that this occurs because of the economic opportunities that would provide for the Otago region generally and Dunedin specifically. I believe that we must ensure such exploration and any subsequent extraction occurs in an environmentally friendly manner but we must also ensure the economic sustainability of our region which this opportunity could significantly enhance. I expect that the DCC will support this critical economic development opportunity while also ensuring it occurs in an adequately environmentally sustainable manner.

Farra Engineering is in full support of the Governments actions in continuing to offer Petroleum Blocks up for possible exploration.

We see the potential of Oil and Gas exploration and hopefully production as a huge net positive to the city, potentially generating;

1. Income for the city.
2. Skilled job growth for the city.
3. Development of new aligned industries in the city.
4. Growth for existing industries in the city.
5. Achievement of national/international scale for some industries in the city that will enable further ongoing growth.
6. Development of the Harbourside into a sustainable industrial base.
7. Opportunities for collaboration and growth for the University with the Oil and Gas industry.
8. Significant economic flow on effect for all of the city.
9. Sustainable vocational opportunities for our children within the city, rather than having to go north or west.

Note that there is also a regional development consideration to have some royalty payments go to the City, rather than all into Government coffers.

Dunedin continues to suffer from a reduction in its manufacturing base, the closure of Hillside and the impending closure of ESCO being recent examples. Oil and Gas can be the catalyst for much needed sustained economic growth for the city for decades to come. You need to look no further than New Plymouth to understand the positives.

We are also completely against the City Council calling the Oil and Gas industry immoral. Whilst the Council has the right to make that call, we do not believe it had anything like the mandate to make that decision.

We accept that the burning of fossil fuels has an impact on global warming but do not accept that rejecting the right to explore and extract oil and gas off the southern coast (it is only expected to be gas off shore here) will impact on the amount of oil and gas (and coal) being burnt worldwide. It would simply be a moral decision to reject the industry and have no impact past the warm glow it would give those who object and a cold shudder to the majority who we believe support. There are considerable economic, political and industrial initiatives happening internationally that can and are making a difference to fossil fuel use. Pushing exploration to other quarters is not one of them.

Petroleum Block Offer 2016

With the possibility of New Zealand moving to a multi-basin extraction model for Natural Gas, the Civic leaders of Otago should be excited at the potential the Caravel prospect could offer our region in terms of economic and social development.

With at least four exploration companies committed to further work in this area, there is every reason to offer united support for the prospect of Dunedin becoming a centre of excellence for the support of the offshore industry.

Recent deep water drilling work in New Zealand waters by the vessel Noble Bob Douglas should provide our citizens with reassurance that modern deep water drilling technology is very safe, and I have every confidence that comprehensive safety plans will reduce any threat of risk to our environment to the absolute minimum.

Dunedin is the closest major city to the Caravel prospect and has excellent port facilities, top class hospital and rescue helicopter services, a thriving hospitality industry, and is the proud home of a leading university.

The existing engineering industry is well resourced, and is acknowledged as being capable of supporting the immediate requirements of the offshore industry.

These factors are critical in the decision as to where a southern base may be located, along with strong signals of support from civic, community and business leaders.

I welcome the opportunities that the offshore natural gas industry may present to Dunedin, and I strongly urge the Dunedin City Council to show their support to the vision of Dunedin City as the leading candidate for a Southern Support Base for the offshore industry.

Hello,

I think oil and gas exploration off the Otago coast is a good step in the right direction. Everyone looks at the negatives, but what about the thriving economy and retention of skilled professionals?

With a world class university, the graduates that stay in Dunedin the better.

The rates are also high even though roading is sub-par and services are behind most of the country eg public transport.

My main question would be; Haven't we already divest from any oil or gas exploration?

Kind regards,
Anthony Stones-Haig

To whom it may concern,

I write to give public feedback on exploration for oil and gas off the Otago coast.

Notwithstanding the standard arguments that drilling could enrich Dunedin by creating a Taranaki-like economic boom, that we live in a petroleum-run world, that renewable energy just can't cut it when it comes to meeting our present-day needs, I oppose drilling on essentially moral grounds. Yes, I drive a car and use plastic bags; I am part of 2015. Equally, I perceive that our present way of life is driving mass extinctions, powers consumerism and materialism, and has resulted in an increasingly fractured society. If the status quo is to be maintained by drilling, then I reject the status quo.

The enormous risk to Otago's coastline and biota posed by a potential oil spill does not merit mention here. An oil spill would be catastrophic, and the DCC does not need me to point that out.

I am 39, a professional working south of the Octagon, a Warrington resident and an Otago graduate. I have made my life in Dunedin. I understand the argument forwarded by the Otago Chamber of Commerce and others that any DCC submission opposing drilling would have no consequence in terms of climate change but could discourage investors (to my personal detriment). I register their argument that my opposition is in any case environmentally futile.

So be it. I hereby piss against the wind. Drilling is morally wrong.

I request the right to be heard at any hearing conducted on the matter.

Yours faithfully

Richard Reeve

As an organisation that works for people finding employment we are presently aware of 46 engineering jobs being lost to Dunedin before Christmas. The oil and gas prospecting off the coast represents the opportunity for jobs for the people of the city who are now stressed and by Christmas and will have very little money in the bank to enjoy Christmas with their families – instead there will be a lot of angst and stress in these households and the social costs that accompany this!!!!!!

My Submission is this.

As a city we are aware of global warming and that oil and gas contribute to this. We are also aware that the world is transitioning to other fuels. Presently though the whole of Dunedin's economy is dependent on fossil fuels in some way or another as we are a long way from markets and the rest of the country and the rest of the world.

As a city we would like to be engaged and involved with the whole process of exploration and all the way through seek consultation with the Government and the Companies involved.

As deep sea drilling has risks we would like to know how the government and the companies are going to ameliorate the risks to the environment and to life and limb.

That the companies involved in drilling have a good track record in working overseas with third world nations.

That these companies are also starting to look to a whole energy strategy and changing focus to broaden their energy strategies so they include less fossil fuel based energy.

In the context of economic benefit as there is going to be drilling on the Otago coast we would also like to see ourselves as providing a base for this exploration as the people of Dunedin are needing on-going well paid employment. In particular our hospitality and engineering firms as well as Port Otago have a lot to gain from being involved in the oil and gas industry. As Taranaki and New Plymouth and even Aberdeen in Scotland demonstrate there is a lot to be gained from an on-going and accountable relationship with both the Government and the Individual Companies involved in exploration. This fits in well with the long term strategy for Dunedin as we are seeking to create 10,000 more jobs and for our people to have a raise in their income and standard of living.

Regards

Rachel Elder

Dear DCC,

Thank you for asking.

Across the board "No on all exploration and mining" in our oceans and landscape.

We have alternative energy systems and they must be implemented "yesterday decades ago already".

Humans need to stop toxifying the planet.

Mining gas and petroleum mining without exception destroys the local environment, and is destroying the global environment. The big treasure Dunedin/Otago has is its amazing ocean, coastline, landscape, wildlife. That is the gem of Dunedin, along with its brilliant people. Short term profiteers feeding multi national corporations will destroy this area and local natural resources if they don't stop it and transition over to other non destructive businesses - with all their wealth they can do so.

My opinion is the same as the last time you asked, and so I am attaching my very long PDF I submitted the last time.

Sincerely,

Caroline Davies

In my personal opinion the council should support this. Underpinning investment in our region encourages growth, increases the flow of money coming in and therefore benefits the wider community in a tangible way. It also has the effect of creating 'feel good' or 'positive' thinking in the community which in turn generates further progress and growth.

In the past our forefathers created this city through numerous different approaches; where would we be without land reclamation? This would have had far more impact on the land and environment than searching for oil and gas. We need money and positivity in this city of ours so yes I support this venture.

Dear Dunedin City Councilors,

I strongly urge you, as the Dunedin City Council, to oppose deep sea drilling in your submission to New Zealand Petroleum and Minerals' Block Offer 2016. Deep sea drilling is not the future I want for Dunedin or New Zealand! Deep sea drilling puts at risk our already depleted marine environment.

Dear Patricia McLean,

I am emailing to raise concerns around potential oil and gas exploration in the South Island.

Can you assure me that there will be serious consideration of environmental issues including Climate Change issues surrounding this Block Offer consultation? There is marine life to protect not to mention the huge tourism trade in the South Island that could be under threat should there be an oil spill or such disaster. These are occur more frequently than the public know.

Globally, there are already more known gas reserves than we can safely use without breaching the 2 degrees tipping point for catastrophic climate change, Any further exploration can only exacerbate this problem.

New Zealand needs to play it's part in transitioning to a low carbon twenty first century world. A moratorium on new permits, at the very least, is the only responsible outcome for Block Offer 2016.

Thank you
