Subject: Future landfill planning

Good morning Cathryn,

Your enquiry has been passed on to me in regards to landfill planning. I can advise that Green Island landfill is consented to operate until October 2023. At this stage there is no consent application to extend the operating life of the landfill. As the landfill is filling there is a programme of capping that takes place progressively. Final capping will occur from late 2023 and will continue over a two year period to completion. The transfer station and resource recovery centre operations (public area) may continue to operate.

The DCC has just engaged a new landfill operations contract with Waste Management. This company has the specific expertise to complete the works however, other specialised contractors will be engaged where required for both operational and closure works where required.

I hope this goes some way to answering your questions. If you want to discuss further I'm happy to give you a call to discuss. Just let me know what time works for you.

Kind regards,

Catherine Irvine

"Hello - My husband Dean Mooyman and I live at [REDACTED] directly across from the industrial area housing Firth, Envirowaste, Hall Bros, Allen, Otago Metals, and whatever else may be going on over there... Additionally we are very close to the landfill. We are doing some long term planning regarding maintenance and sale of our home and are in the process of better understanding the area better from a city planning perspective. Right now I would like information regarding the long term plan for the operation of the Green Island Landfill. How long is the landfill scheduled to operate before being covered? I understand that finding a replacement site is virtually impossible and that the general plan may not be fulfilled on schedule due to this immense challenge. I'm just trying to get a ballpark idea of what the scope of operations is at the landfill and what the long term vision is there from the DCC's planning perspective. Please let me know. Cathryn Mazer
