5. Hospital redevelopment

Cr. Benson-Pope advised that the reconstitution of the Southern Partnership Group, to include people from south, which makes it a real Partnership. They have made great progress and part of that includes the establishment of a Local Advisory Group.

The Local Advisory Group has now moved on from discussions about appropriate sites to talk about the associated issues. The Minister will be announcing the site before the end March. It's a building with a large footprint, and about 9 storeys (55 metres) in height.

Prof. Harlene Hayne asked whether the plan is to rebuild and shift, rather than decant. Cr. Benson-Pope advised that the intention is to enable the hospital to keep operating over the period of the build. The benefit of this approach is that we won't have to try and operate on a building site. The other matter is the housing to accommodate up to 1200 workers over the 7-8 year period of the build.

Office of the Mayor

Mayor welcomes site announcement for new hospital

Dunedin (Friday, 4 May 2018) – Mayor of Dunedin Dave Cull has welcomed today's announcement by Health Minister David Clark that the new Dunedin Hospital will be built in the central city.

"A central city rebuild had been indicated by the previous Government and it is pleasing to have that confirmed today by the current Government.

"It is very much in line with the Dunedin City Council's long-stated position for the city to retain a top-flight teaching hospital in a central city location.

"Over 6000 residents and numerous organisations from throughout Otago and Southland backed last year's DCC-led Dunedin Hospital SOS campaign, and I'm delighted that their voices have been heard.

"The new hospital is a significant investment in Dunedin and the wider Otago/Southland region, and it is great that the health, educational and economic synergies brought about by central city rebuild will be retained and even enhanced.

"I am also pleased that the recently vacated Cadbury factory site will not remain empty for long and that the site will soon be put to productive use.

"Clearly there will be a number of planning issues to work through as the project gets underway, and I look forward to Council continuing to represent the community's voice in that process and supporting the Ministry of Health and other stakeholders to facilitate the rebuild as soon as possible," says Mr Cull.

Subject: New Dunedin Hospital Site announced

Sent on behalf of Kathy Grant, Commissioner, and Pete Hodgson, Chair, SPG

Good morning,

The wait is over – Health Minister David Clark has just confirmed the central city site for the New Dunedin Hospital. The billion-dollar hospital will be spread over a large area of land taking in two city blocks:

- The block diagonally across from the current hospital site which contains the Wilson's car-park
- The site of the former Cadbury chocolate factory, including the car-park across the road on Anzac Avenue.

This is a tremendous result for Southern, giving us a site which is both close to the current hospital and large enough to accommodate future growth. Having both blocks available also gives flexibility when it comes to design and layout so we can optimise the hospital to align with modern standards.

We are sure you are all eager to find out where the different parts of the hospital complex will be located. There are many different options on the table – for example, the main hospital may be on one site and out-patients on the other. However, these decisions have yet to be made and will not become clearer until the detailed design phase begins later this year.

The process to obtain the former Cadbury site is relatively straightforward and the project team is in negotiation with the owners Mondelez. The site containing Wilson's car-park and Warehouse Stationery has eight owners, who have been informed. The Public Works Act requires landowners be treated fairly and the Ministry of Health is committed to ensuring that does happen.

The New Dunedin Hospital's dedicated website has a wealth of information about the project including detailed Questions and Answers <http://newdunedinhospital.nz/>

Having a confirmed site is a significant step forward for all of us at Southern DHB. It certainly gives further impetus to this project and helps us envisage the shape our new hospital will take. This in turn will help us to make progress on the wider changes we need to make to best serve our community and ageing population, as we implement the primary and community care strategy and action plan and develop a network of care across the whole district.

As a community we now have a focal point and as a health board we have plenty of work to do.

We can't wait to get on with it!

Kind regards,

Kathy Grant
